

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Methods and apparatus are disclosed for monitoring data for detection of various events. More particularly, an agent is adapted for monitoring data indicating one or more events associated therewith. Through monitoring this data, one or more of a specified set of events are detected within the data. A message indicating that one or more of the specified set of events has been detected is then sent.